NORWAY AND VICINITY.

Francis Freeman Stevens died at his home, corner of Tucker and Alpine streets, Saturday, at the age of 70 years, 4 months and 7 days. He was the son of Joseph and Ruth (Bradbury) Stevens and grandson of Joseph and Elizabeth (Hobbs) Stevens. History says that the grandfather was the first male child born in Norway. Besides his wife, Mrs. Charlotte (Bryant) Stevens, he leaves five children, Fred H. Stevens, Frank H. Stevens, Addie F. Stevens, Charles E. Stevens and Winfield F. Stevens.
The funeral was held from his late home, Tuesday at 10 o'clock, and was attended by Norway Lodge, No. 16, I. O. O. F., of which he was a member, who performed their burial ritual. Rev. C. A. Brooks was the clergyman. The floral offerings were very beautiful.
The interment was at Woodstock.

Norway & Western Railroad.

W. G. Rand of the Norway & Western Railroad stopped off in Norway a few hours, Tuesday, on his way to Montreal. He expects work on the road to begin in a short time.

The Rubber Game.

The Radcliffe and Oxford will play at the fair grounds again this Saturday. Game called at 3 o'clock. This is the rubber game between the two teams and it is understood that there is $100 up on each side.

Mrs. Walter Leavitt and little son have been visiting for several weeks in Swanscott, Mass.

Alfonso Buteau has rented the Prescott boarding house on Lynn street and moved in Tuesday.
Judge and Mrs. C. F. Whitman returned from their visit to Peierboro, N. H.—the first of the week.
C. N. Tubbs' house on Cottage street occupied by Mrs. George W. Chaney, is receiving a new coat of paint.
Henry Kilgore is having his house on Beal street painted and Forest Daniels is also painting his house.
W. I. Russ has purchased the shoe making business of Wm. B. Marston and engaged Mr. Marston to work for him.
Dennie Joelyn has purchased the Starbird house on the corner of Beal and Marston streets and will move in soon.
Mrs. Elizabeth Blake has had the fence around her lawn removed and had the lawn graded, which makes a decided improvement.
Mrs. Isabelle Fletcher, Mrs. Bertha Bradford, Hortense Gregg and Annie on accommodations and relatives in Bath and Brunswick before she returns.
B. S. Rich, who bought the J. E. Rhodes farm on Pike Hill about two years ago, has sold the farm to Herbert S. Wood of this town. Mr. Rich came from Northumberland, N. H. here. He has now purchased the Josiah F. Hall farm up Swift river, some four miles from Rumford Falls. He has got a large river farm, paying some $3500 for it. Mr. Rich doesn't like the hills and rocks of this vicinity, and his children live at Rumford Falls.

VOLUME XXXVII

PIERCE POND CAMPS

And a picture of Pierce Pond Fishermen and Salmon—which Sanborn of this paper did not catch.
Reached by the Somerset Railway from Oakland, Me., to Bingham, thence team or stage to Carratunk, a bateau and a four mile walk and a two mile boat ride—big fish, big game, beaver dams, black bears and comfortable camps.

A Bad Accident.

While working at the bridge on Pleasant street near the head of Main street, Wednesday, two men were badly injured by the bank caving in causing the dirt and some rocks to fall.

Ephraim Wood had one hand badly injured and a bad wound on the head. His son, Frank Wood had his right leg broken and it was feared that he was hurt internally. The elder Mr. Wood was taken to a nearby house and Frank was carried to his brother's, George Wood's on Cottage street, where a physician was called.

A Farewell Party.

Tuesday evening a party of twenty friends and neighbors of Mr. and Mrs. S. W. Snow gave them a farewell party. A pleasant time was enjoyed by all, although there was a shade of sadness with the merriment. Mr. and Mrs. Snow have lived in our town 23 years, and among our most respected citizens, and their many friends are sorry to lose them. They have been very successful in their new home in Auburn. Ice cream, cake and cocoa were served and after singing "Should Old Acquaintance be Forgotten," the friends departed, each leaving a good wish for a happy future.

Hill-Harris.

Iva Grace Hill, formerly of Norway, and Elwood S. Harris of West Baldwin were united in marriage on June 6th, the ceremony being performed by the Rev. J. Frank Haley, pastor of the Pine Street Methodist church, Portland. John W. Kent of Boston, Mass., acted as best man and Lillian M. Roberts of Deerling as bridesmaid, the single ring service being performed.

The Earthquake in Norway.

Friday evening, June 20th, Col. C. H. French will give one of his magnificent illustrated lectures at the Congregational church. His subject will be the San Francisco earthquake and the frightful destruction of the queen city of the Pacific coast. It will be a magnificent and costly illustrated portrayal of the world's most awful tragedy of nature. Further notice will be given. Remember the date and plan to attend.

Auction of Personal Property.

On the John Rhodes farm, Pike Hill, Tuesday, June 19th at 1:30 p. m., 6 good good cows, steers, heifers, calves, hares, setting machines, farm wagons, horse power, creamery tank, cans, kettles, etc. George A. Cole auctioneer, B. L. Rich, owner.

Rev. S. G. Davis will deliver a Memorial sermon to the Grangers at 2:30 o'clock next Sunday.

Lake Shore Notes.

Dr. A. Thompson and family are due at Rock Island July 1.

We understand that Harry Burnham and party will arrive soon.
Mrs. George Horne and daughter Rosalie are at Woodbine for the season.
Miss E. J. Smith and Mrs. A. H. Foster are at Tanglewood for the summer.
Camp Robin Hood hoisted its flag Memorial day and J. W. Crommett and family moved in for the summer June 9.
C. L. Hathaway and wife and Clara Hathaway spent Sunday at Summer Rest going and returning by Launch Henrietta.

Norman and Carl Crommett have been making extensive improvements in their Steam Launch Henrietta. New awning, fresh paint and varnish. They have done away with the oil burner, using wood or coal for fuel, no odor, no smoke or gasolene. She will soon be ready for special sailing parties.

Norman A. Crommett and Edmund Boucher have chartered the steamer Pennesseewassee for the season of 1906, and will start on schedule time the last of June or first of July. Allie Crommett is well known by the lake people, having held a masters and engineers papers for the past five years. Mr. Boucher is well known by the people of Norway, as being of Maine's taxidermists. He is a clean, steady, industrious young man, and it seems as though they might fill the bill. With plenty of water, the outlook looks favorable for a good season.

Quincy Adams Sawyer.

Manager C. L. Hathaway is to be congratulated on securing the great play, Quincy Adams Sawyer for Thursday June 21, at the Norway Opera house. The play closely follows the book which has achieved enormous popularity. No actors are made to enlarge on the plot. "Quincy Adams Sawyer" is a wealthy young Boston lawyer who goes into the country for his health. He meets a blind girl whose love he wins. Their courtship is the main theme of the play. It is the realistic portrayal of character and scene that has won the play its distinction. To be sure, it lacks a villain, a ruined girl, a lost will, a mortgage and cruel uncle, but it contains plenty of types of people all distinct, and natural. There is genuine comedy throughout all the play and the few touches of pathos strike as true and convincing. It is a wholesome, clearly cut picture of New England life and as such it finds favor everywhere. The play leaves a good taste in the mouth, and that is what the people want. Tickets on sale at Stone's.

Mrs. Hugh D. Smith is on the sick list.

Lizzie Etheridge has gone to Portland. Freeman Manson was in town over Sunday.

Mrs. Estes of Bryant's Pond is caring for Mrs. Dolle Buck.

The Radcliffe and Oxford play for $100 a side next Saturday.

Lettuce grown on the place this year was served at Round Pond, Sunday.

Wm. C. Cole has finished building moving at Buckfield and is at home.

Guy Emery is visiting his brother, Harry Leighton in Shelburne, N. H.

Mrs. Frank DeCoster and two children are visiting her sister, Mrs. E. E. Flood, in Farmington.

Charles Libby has been nursing a sore hand. He has carried it in a sling. It is improving now.

Dennis L. Joslin will preach at G. A. Hall, Sunday at 2:30 o'clock if the weather permits.

Adelaide B. Shattuck goes to Massachusetts next week to visit relatives in the vicinity of Boston.

The F. H. Noyes Os. are having the sidewalk in front of their store relaid with cement block pavement by A. W. Walker & Son of South Paris. It is understood that John A. Woodman will also have the Beal's House sidewalk relaid.

Memorial services of Pennesseewassee Lodge, No. 18, K. of P. will be held at the Universalist church Sunday, at 10:30 a. m. The pastor, Rev. S. G. Davis, will deliver the sermon. The members are requested to meet in Castle hall at 10 o'clock.

Norway Grange will observe Children's Day with an all-day's meeting, Saturday, June 23. An address will be given the children by Rev. Bates S. Rideout, and dinner will be served to all. Patrons are requested to bring baked beans and all good things necessary for the occasion.

What do you think of the road side improvement? Is it worth the money expended? Probably some will say that it is not, however, those who have expressed their views in our hearing, say it adds much to the beauty of the drive. See report in another column. If more money can be had—and we feel that it can—more improvements will be made.

Lake Roadside Improvement.

Some work has been done by the roadside. More is needed to be done. A report to the 30 persons who have contributed the funds is in order. Here it is. If you want to see the bills and vouchers that make up these totals call at this office and they will be cheerfully shown you.

Total cash received.....$76.50
Amount expended.....61.03
Cash in our hands.....15.47

The bills that go to make the above account have been approved by Wm. C. Leavitt and F. H. Noyes. They with us were the managers of the scheme of this improvement.

This sum will be sufficient to trim the remaining trees in the bend of the road. These trees were left because the Norway & Western Ry. people talk of changing the highway and carrying it further out in the lake. Should this be done whatever money laid out on these trees would be wasted, hence we concluded to wait. The road commissioner is waiting to the building of a new railing for the same reason. A good railing will be made as soon as the railroad question is settled.

We hope to receive sufficient funds to finish up in good shape the work begun. It is planned to fix up the two points of land by the brook for a park with seats and benches.

It must be remembered that this roadside must be cared for each year to keep it in the condition that it should be. Any contribution sent to this office for the Lake Roadside Improvement will be acknowledged and carefully expended. Can't you contribute a small sum?

A Just Reward for Their Labors.

Evangelists MacPhie and Smith, who have been holding evangelistic services at Norway Lake and Norway Center, closed their labors, Wednesday evening, at the latter place and have gone to East Stoneham.

It is rarely that such strong, consecrated men visit the smaller places. It is the purpose of the Evangelistic Association of New England with headquarters at Boston to send during the summer some of their ablest workers into the small places to see what can be done for those parts, which hitherto have not been reached by modern evangelism. The association make the terms so easy that any place can secure their assistance.

All the association asks is the care of the men in the place where they labor and a free-will offering at the close of the mission.

The labors of these splendid workers have been abundantly blessed in Norway. Professing Christians have been quickened and a large number have expressed the determination to live a Christian life. Rev. Mr. MacPhie and Mr. Smith have won many lasting friends while in Norway, who will remember them through all their days as those who have brought the greatest blessings under God into their lives.

St. John's Day.

Oxford Lodge, No. 18, F. & A. M., will observe St. John's day by a basket picnic at Thompson's Lake, Oxford, Friday, June 22nd. The headquarters will be at Dr. E. R. Farrar's cottage, which access can be had by teams or boats. Dinner will be served at 1 o'clock. Beans and coffee will be provided. Those attending are to furnish their mugs and plates.

It is reported that Dr. Harry Nevers has sold his business in Bingham.

It is understood that Ellie Swan will be the assistant in the postoffice.

Harold Seavey and Martha Sleeper are on a short visit to their homes in Kennebunk.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Bean attended the Oxford county conference at Shelburne, N. H.

Ross Bickford and Vivian Akers returned from their Stoneham trip, Thursday morning.

Crooked River Lodge, F. & A. M., have been invited to visit Oxford Lodge, Friday evening, June 29th.

One of the recent sights in Norway is a young man and woman who walk our streets "hand in hand." This state of affairs is always expected Fourth of July and circus days, but for a broad daylight every day affair, it makes it too common.

H. H. Russell came down from Berlin, N. H., this Thursday and will return next Monday. He is working for his brother, J. L. Russell of that city.

Rev. B. S. Rideout will deliver his popular lecture, "Idiosyncrasies," at Bolster's Mills, Friday evening of this week. The lecture will be given under the auspices of the local church. This is one of the most popular of Mr. Rideout's lectures. An ice cream social will follow the address.

Mrs. James Brown of Fitchburg, Mass., and her son, E. E. Brown, and granddaughter, Grace E. Brown, of that city, have been visiting Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Brown of this town. They returned home this week. Mrs. Brown will be 80 years old come October and is very smart and active and could easily pass for one much younger. She and her son's wife, Mrs. W. C. Brown, made the advertisement a pleasant call, Monday.

They also called on the photographer but Mrs. Brown, senior, demurred at having her picture taken on the occasion of her voice and at present is the soprano of one of the church quartets of her home city. She has sung with great acceptance to large audiences at several important occasions this past winter. For one so young her voice has a remarkable range and strength which with its purity of tone and accuracy of pitch renders it indeed an enviable possession.

SOUTH PARIS.

Mrs. L. B. Carter is in Boston.

Henry Howe is visiting at East Bethel.

Mertie G. Walker was in Portland recently.

Mrs. Charles H. Thayer was in Auburn over Sunday.

Sidewalk Bicycle Riding.

The arrest of two boys for riding bicycles on the sidewalk last Thursday has created considerable talk among a few people who do not seem to know that laws are made to protect the public and that it is the duty of our officers to enforce the law. Some have asserted that partiality has been shown and complain that the boys were arrested without warrants. A few facts may enlighten the public and save lots of useless talk.

A year ago the corporation passed an ordinance forbidding the use of sidewalks by bicyclists. It was printed in the local papers and copies posted in conspicuous places on every street in town, but there were no arrests made because there was no police official. On the second of June the assessors instructed our policeman to see that the law was enforced.

The officer feeling that it was proper that the public should again be warned before he made any arrests posted more copies of the articles referring to riding on the sidewalks and inserted a notice in the Democrat of June 4. On June 3d, a gentleman who resides in Norway and works in South Paris came to the officer and said that he had heard that some one had complained that he and his children had been using the walks for bicycle riding. He confessed that they had but said that he was unaware of the existence of the law forbidding it before.

The officer then told him what his instructions were and that after the next issue of the Democrat he would have to arrest any whom he found violating the law. The gentleman said that he would endeavor to keep the law and instruct his family to do the same. Now, candidly, did the officer show the man any partiality?

As to arresting without a warrant, all familiar with police matters know that an officer can take any law breaker without a warrant and lodge him in jail over night, then take him before a judge and have the warrant made out at that time. In the case of these boys, however, the officer had his warrants with him, when he notified them of their arrest and instead of putting them to the extra expense of two dollars for a night's entertainment with landlord Farrar, simply asked them to appear before the judge of the police court at Norway the next day.

The New Toy Factory.

Good progress is being made on the lot near the railroad where the new factory of the Mason Mfg. Co., is to be built. The foundation is about ready for the main building which will rest on concrete piers. This building will be 65x365 feet. 200 feet will be three stories high, the remainder, two stories. Smaller buildings for various parts of the work will also be erected. Carloads of lumber and equipment from the mill at Groveton, N. H., are already arriving. The spur track from the railroad has been staked out and a trench is being dug for the pipe which will supply the plant with water from the Norway water system.

REACH THE SPOT.

To cure an aching back, The pains of rheumatism, The tired-out feelings, You must reach the spot—get at the cause.

In most cases 'tis the kidneys. Doan's Kidney Pills are for the kidneys.

Charles Bierbach, stone contractor, living at 2325 Chestnut St., Erie, Pa., says: "For two years I had kidney trouble, and there was such a severe pain through my loins and limbs that I could not stoop or straighten up without great pain, had difficulty in getting about and was unable to rest at night, arising in the morning tired and worn out. The kidney secretions were irregular and disposed a heavy sediment. Doctors treated me for rheumatism, but failed to help me. I lost all confidence in medicine, but Doan's Kidney Pills relieved me so quickly and so thoroughly that I gladly made a statement to that effect for publication. This was in 1898, and during the six years which have elapsed I have never known Doan's Kidney Pills to fail."

A FREE TRIAL of this great kidney medicine which cured Mr. Bierbach will be mailed on application to any part of the United States. Address Foster-McBurn Co., Buffalo, N. Y. For sale by all druggists; price, 50 cents per box.

Only a Minute.

Only a minute, but just sixty seconds, Only a minute to spare, No more time than mankind ever reckons. To lighten the world's load of care; In only a minute, a life may be saved, In only a minute a life may be saved, It takes but a minute from sleep to awaken, A minute to lower our loved in the grave.

Only a minute to snatch from our busy, busy hours, a child, or to brighten old age, While the hours that are wasted in folly and worry.

And discord, alas would fill many a page; We've hours to spare at the summons of Pleasure. While minutes to duty are grudgingly given, With time worse than wasted, we talk of the future.

And towards that, awaits our arrival in Heaven. From Time to Eternity's only a minute, And steadily, still, the sands of Time fall, If a task is awaiting, you better begin it, Ere the last of your minutes are gone past.

Only a minute, but if each one was freighted With time worse than wasted, we talk of the future. We'd not wait to wait for a Heaven belated, 'Twould be Heaven too late and Eternity too.

Spare the Wild Flowers.

An Appeal to Those Who Destroy Because They Do Not Think.

This is the season of the year when dwellers in cities and towns may be seen returning after holiday excursions, loaded down with flowers, leaves and branches of trees, torn off from their stems by people who wish to carry away with them the most beautiful things that nature so lavishly spreads abroad in the spring. To admire and to desire to possess these beautiful things is natural, yet to tear them down and carry them away shows a deplorable lack of thought.

The last thing that a person should do when he is about to leave a place is to pause and think a moment. Knows very well that a few hours after the twig has been parted from its branch or the flower from its stem, and flower and branch alike will lose their resemblance to the beautiful things that they were when the wish for possession, and is no longer worth having. Thus, for the gratification of a passing impulse, one has destroyed a beautiful object that but for this haste and selfishness it would have been a pleasure to other people for days or weeks.

It is not uncommon to see people coming from the country laden with branches of dogwood for example, four feet long; lilacs are torn down and defaced, and bunches of carnations, roses, like violets, buttercups and others are wilting in every hand. If people would recognize how fleeting is that gratification derived from this destruction of the flowers, and how selfish it is, they probably would not be guilty of the crime.

A regulated person does not even if the opportunity occurs—destroy shrubbery in the public parks for the purpose of carrying away with him the flowers and branches. In towns and cities such an act is commonly regarded as an offence, and any one found guilty of it is likely to be punished, by a fine or otherwise.

Yet, the principal is the same, whether the destruction is wrought in town or in country; but in the country the offender does not attempt to protect his shrubbery or his wild flowers, unless they are close to his house.

GRAFTON.

A. M. Otis was in Augusta last week on a business trip.

Mr. Tam and Mr. Andrews from Paris are boarding at O. W. Brooks'.

Mrs. Hattie Mooney from West Paris recently visited her brother, Gilbert Tyler, in this town.

Mrs. Otis W. Brooks has been ill for several weeks and does not improve as rapidly as might be desired.

W. H. Otis and J. E. Brooks attended a meeting of the stockholders of the A. L. T. & Co. at Willard Wigh's in North Newry.

Robert Lowe and family from Portland have been boarding at J. W. Chapin's. They came from Portland in their automobile, making the trip in five hours.

Mrs. Nellie M. Brown has returned to her home in this town after being away all winter. Her son, James W. Brown, came with her from Rumford Falls, but returned Sunday.

Mrs. J. Edwin Nye.

At the age of 55 years, Mrs. J. Edwin Nye passed away at her home in Auburn New York, on Wednesday afternoon at half past 10 o'clock. Mrs. Nye visited the cemetery on Memorial Day, with her husband, who is a veteran of the Civil war. She has been ill only a week with pneumonia.

Mrs. Nye, who was formerly Miss M. Ella Merrill, was born in Waterford. She has been twice married, her first husband being the late Elery Goss of Auburn.

Mrs. Nye as a girl lived in Norway. She was the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Merrill. It was only a few days ago that Mrs. Nye visited her brother, George Merrill, in Norway. She has always been a frequent visitor here.

She was a woman much loved and with a large circle of friends. She was a deaconess of the Congregational church and active in the Ladies' circle. She belonged to the Old Ladies' society and was also a member of Burnside circle, the Relief Corps and of the Pilgrim Fathers.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian tube. When this tube is inflamed, you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be lost forever; deafness is not a disease, but a symptom of a disease, and it is not cured by local applications.

The annual encampment of the Maine Grand Army of the Republic and Relief Corps and Ladies' Circle of the G. A. R. State departments, which is to be held at Portland on June 13 and 14, promises to be one of the largest and most interesting of the most interesting in the history of the State. This year the encampment is to meet in June instead of February as has been the custom for several years, and it is believed that the warmer weather will be appreciated by the members in every respect as so much more agreeable than in the winter and in consequence a large attendance is expected.

More Sheep Should Be Kept on New England Farms.

East of the great range section of our country we have only one-third as many sheep on our farms as we formerly had. In our State we are annually losing $1,500,000 that might be ours if we had kept up our flocks. The loss is relatively greater in many other States. That this is a total loss is evident from the fact that our farms are capable of supporting all the stock we now carry and our former flocks of sheep besides. I maintain that the fertility brought to the farms by the sheep would so improve them that the whole income from the sheep might be regarded as clear gain to our farm industry.

One of the evils against which our flock masters have had to contend has been the dog nuisance. Legislators have repeatedly tried to find some law that would take the dog against the sheep, but thus far, the dog has had more protection than the sheep and the evil still remains. That it is one of the great obstacles in the way of increasing our flocks is abundantly proved by the statistics of those sheep raisers who say they would keep sheep if it wasn't for the dogs. To my mind there appears only one way of solving the problem—recognize the dog as the lawful property of its owner and compel the owner to keep his dog home. If this cannot be done then the alternative is to kill the dog. It is certainly true that there are many thousand worthless dogs, "both mongrel, puppy, whelp and hound, of every kind, degree," in this country, which are a constant menace to the sheep industry.

Then, the question of fences is an important one. We do not have the available supply of forest fencing that our forefathers had. We turn to wire, the best substitute and find that expensive, and unsatisfactory as a sheep fence. We cannot afford to fence large pastures for small flocks as people used to do. We must learn different methods and fence our pastures for large flocks. Instead of pasturing 100 acres with 40 sheep, we must learn to feed as many on 10 acres. With the cheapening of woven wire fencing there will be no great difficulty in making needed fences to restrain the dogs from doing mischief. Unlike her ancestors in some respects, she can be confined on small areas and kept at a profit. One of our most successful sheepmen recommends that flocks be pastured at the rate of four sheep, an acre.

There is no question to-day in regard to the possible profit from sheep. In fact, there has never been a decade in which the profit from the flocks would have averaged up well with the profit from other kinds of stock.

There is another reason for this lack of interest in sheep—a reason that has been so insidious in its work that we have rarely noted it only when the effect has been felt.

The several State organizations, the writers for the farm papers, the institute workers, and, in some cases, the experiment stations have neglected the sheep industry. The great increase in dairying has been brought about by the combined forces of nearly all agricultural workers. I find no fault with this. It is right and the work should be continued, but it is a case of "this ought to be done and not left to the other—done."

Make the same effort and the same amount of thought and study been given to the sheep that have been given to the cow, we should to-day have a large number of sheepmen making a success of their business. There are many farms better adapted to sheep farming than to dairying; there are many of our farmers who could make a success of the work if they would only apply themselves to the business in an intelligent, energetic manner. The methods of work that answered in the past are not the ones to be used to-day. We are in a transition state. We are passing away from the old and learning the new. Competition in all lines of work has become so keen that we are obliged to study our business as never before, and it may be safely said that in the years to come success is to come only to the man who prepares for it. The highest profit in any branch of farming is obtained only by getting above the average.

It is every man's privilege to get above the average, if he can, and thus increase the value of his flocks and farm. It would be folly to advise everybody to keep sheep, but there is good money in them for those who are adapted to the business. With only one-third as many sheep on our farms as we once had, with our farms understocked and losing in fertility, with our incomes below good business standards and our needs increasing, we may well pause and ask ourselves if we cannot work out our own salvation with the aid of the sheep.

"Be thou diligent to know the state of thy flocks, and look well to thy herds, for the lambs are for thy clothing."

Take Time To Eat.

Harry at Meals Will Send You to Noyes Drug Store for Mi-o-na Stomach Tablets.

"Eat in haste and repent at leisure" is an old saying brought to date. Hurry at breakfast means a bad start in the day, and if you hurry also at the other meals, you will soon suffer with loss of appetite, sleeplessness, nervousness, furred tongue, specks before the eyes, headaches, back-aches, weakness and indigestion, or other ailments that are caused by an abused stomach.

Here in Norway, as in thousands of other places over the country, hurry at meals increases the druggists' business. Not a day passes that Noyes Drug Store does not sell several packages of Mi-o-na stomach tablets to those who have ruined their digestion by not taking time to eat.

Of course indigestion has many other causes, but whatever the cause, the remedy is the same, Mi-o-na. It cures any indigestion, increases the flow of the gastric juices, and actually gives strength and tone to the whole digestive system, so that you can soon eat anything at any time without fear of indigestion. Noyes Drug Store has seen so many cures made by Mi-o-na that they can under an absolute guarantee that it will be successful in every case where it is used in accordance with directions, that is, one tablet before each meal, and with the money to anyone whom it does not help. A large box of Mi-o-na tablets costs but 50c if it cures; nothing if it fails.

Should Daughter Go out to Work

When a girl has finished her schooling and arrived at years of comparative maturity, is it best for her to remain at home, making herself useful about the house, or should she seek some kind of work outside?

This is a question by which many families are confronted and by which they are apt to be somewhat perplexed. Of course, there are cases which do not come in doubt. Where the father's income is inadequate or only barely sufficient for the comfortable support of those who are dependent upon it, there can seldom be much room for hesitation. As he has spent a large part of what he has made in rearing his children he has probably arrived at middle age without having been able to set much aside for his declining days, and where that is the case it is clearly the duty, and it will nearly always be the desire of his sons and daughters alike, to assume the burden of his maintenance, so that during his remaining period of productivity he may be able to save as large a proportion as possible of his profits or earnings against the contingencies of the future. Under those circumstances the daughter will seek some remunerative employment as a matter not of inclination but of duty.

But suppose the case where the father is in a position to keep his family in comfort and to provide for his own future as well, suppose the daughter is in no necessity whatever to labor for her bread, but is entirely free to make her own choice so far as any financial constraint is concerned, what then would be the wisest thing for her to do? It is difficult to lay down a rule which shall be of universal application, because so much depends upon particular conditions, but it may be said without much danger of going far astray that the girl who leaves the shelter of the home for the turmoil of the market place merely for the purpose of obtaining a little more pocket money, or of enabling herself to dress a little better than would otherwise be practical, therein makes a mistake, which, before all is over, she may expect to have cause to regret.

There are several reasons which might be given in justification of this opinion. One of them is that the young woman who does not need to work in competition with others has no moral right to do so, because she inevitably takes the place of some one else to whom wages are a necessity. Moreover, as she is free from the obligation of supplying her own wants she can afford to accept a less than living rate of pay, and thus, by becoming a voluntary worker, she does those an injury who are compelled to work in order to provide themselves with the means of subsistence.

These are days in which great stress is laid upon the rights of the individual, and it will be argued that the young woman in question is at liberty to pursue her own interests, or what she conceives to be her own interests, without any regard to the welfare of others. In a limited sense this is true; the law allows her that privilege.

But none of us living in a state of civilization are really free, that is in morals and religion, to direct our course by merely selfish considerations. We are bound to pay some regard to the rights of the community, because to the community we are indebted for most of the comforts and conveniences we enjoy. The very basis of civilization is co-operation, and its progress depends upon our all working together for the common good. The principle of individualism, that is every one for himself and the devil take the hindmost, has been carried too far. It dominated the nineteenth century, but one need not be much of a prophet to foresee that during the century now current the contrary principle of collectivism will come to the front and profoundly modify the activities of existence.

The conclusion of the whole matter is that for the young woman who does not have to work for wages, home is the best place.

Palms and Ferns in Summer.

Palms and ferns need much summer care. Usually during the summer there is a necessity for free ventilation. This summer few warm nights have relieved this necessity in its fullest degree. Nevertheless, some is necessary. Without it there is too much condensed moisture on the foliage for the welfare of the plants, and the growth is in danger of becoming soft and drawn.

Careful watering should be indulged in this season, for there are so many cloudy days, with the induced humidity of the atmosphere, in which the plants do not dry out so rapidly as may be expected in the early summer. Under such conditions fungoid troubles are likely to appear. This is particularly true of greenhouses, for there is to be found more or less rotten wood, and as a matter of prevention it is well to sprinkle slacked lime under the benches or among the plants.

Fresh air will prove quite effective. A little fire heat and free ventilation should be accorded during a long spell of cool and damp weather, for these will make greater improvements in atmospheric conditions than any other method.

Over-stimulation for palms produces brittle foliage that is not well adapted for the uses of the decorator. Tedious operation is the potting and handling of seedling ferns, says authority on plant life. It is far more trouble, even to the experienced, to pot than to small and tender plants than to care for a lot of rooted outtings of ordinary character, and the day will not close with the same amount accomplished.

It is not heavy work, though, and with reasonable care these should not be much less after the seedlings are potted, that is, if they are not exposed to the air too long while on the potting bench and are watered in and protected from the sun and wind until they become established.

The Soldier.

A letter from Charles H. Clark of Paris, once a soldier, now an inmate of the Soldiers' Home at Togus, says old soldiers are dying fast, should think on an average of one a day. Only a short time ago there died in one day three men in the ward where he is. There is a man there one hundred years old and many ninety and over.

Commencement exercises will be held at Bowdoin college, June 24-28. A trophy, presented by an alumnus, will be awarded the class, prior to that of the present year, which has the largest percentage of living members in attendance.

Of course fly fishermen at the great lakes do not fish with bait. (We mean the real, solid, non-liquid kind.) The initiated however own up to jacking the lowly earth worms. Why do they do them?

June and the Apple Trees.

If the apple trees were as scarce as magnolias we should prize their beauty laden boughs at something like their real worth. Just now the country is bursting into bloom, the many hued flowers surprising us with their loveliness and fragrance. Old orchards, upon the few remaining deserted farms, are preparing to vie with the highly cultivated nurseries of the fruit farms near to the market towns, and in less than a week all Maine will be ablaze with the floral glory that comes once each year.

Man must be spiritually buried indeed who can ride at this time of year and not be moved by the decorations which Dame Nature has prepared for his entertainment and enjoyment. He can be possessed of but little imagination if he does not conjecture and question to himself what greetings of the flaming yellow dandelion will place of the blossoms of the apple trees smile, and blush, and bow in return. He must be intensely practical if he can look ahead over the fleeting summer months, and see the rich fragrance of the harvest, fancy the tinge of the ripening apples in place of the delicate pinks and whites which are now so conspicuous to every observer.

It would not be wise, we suppose, to agitate for the enactment of a law compelling all men and women to shut up their houses, their shops, their offices, their dingy factories and dimly lighted offices, and adjourn to "out of doors" for the next 80 days. Without any statute upon the subject any man or woman who fails to take the most direct and necessary, to make the most of June in the country, and out of doors at that, commits a crime against his own interests. We are aware that practical reasons operate to keep back the tide of tourists' travel until after the schools close, but if these parents and school superintendents did but know the school is no place for a child in June. He should be romping with the birds, chasing butterflies, tramping pastures and fishing brooks. If there is a time of year best adapted to getting out into the open air it is in June.

We are sure that if the tourists who enjoy Maine summers so much had any idea of the beauty they are missing by not being visitors during the month of "birds and blossoms" they would make it in their way to come earlier, if they did not stay later. But however it may be with the tourists those of us who are so fortunate as to have homes here may manage to take some hours every week for a little excursion countryward, to get a whiff of the perfume which is every where, to see the gorgeous settings of the gardens and orchards, and get out into the natural rut for a part of the time into the spiritual realm. Such another chance will not come before another June arrives. The trolly lines invite and they who are wise will hasten to accept, declining to spend all these precious hours in doors. Get off the pavement on to the sod, and then complain to us if you don't like the change. Remember that spiritual teachers of the present age are pretty much agreed that beauty, in whatever form it is presented, is the most earthy, earthy. Luxuriate in it while it is present in such superabundance, and see if you are not better men and women therefor.

Calls It a Whopper.

In regard to the story recently published in the papers about Mrs. Rebecca Warren of Norway, Cal., who introduced the navel oranges from California to the East, a California paper says: "Nobody here seems ever to have heard of this Mrs. Warren and her eleventh hour claim to the fame in connection with the navel orange. It is a well-established historical fact that the first navel was grown in Riverside by Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Tibbets from two trees sent to them by the Department of Agriculture. And both of these trees are growing in Riverside today. The story of Mrs. Warren's having purchased roots of navel trees in San Francisco and of her selling buds from them is the wildest pipe dream ever. There never was a navel tree grown within 100 miles of San Francisco and the buds from the original trees were all distributed from Riverside. We shall have to be 'shown' a whole lot to induce us to take any stock whatever in this yarn from the hills of Oxford county Maine."

The above clipping was sent by E. A. Chase, president of The Chase Nursery Company of Riverside, Cal. He writes: "I was born among the Oxford hills, and it is hard to believe that such a whopper could generate from my own beautiful part of the world."

If anyone knows that the story of Mrs. Warren is true we would be pleased to publish it. If it is a piece of pure imagination we would also be pleased to publish the name of the author. The Advertiser would like to get at the facts of the story.

It Costs More to Prepare the Surface

than to do the repainting itself, if the original paint was not Pure White Lead and Pure Linseed Oil. This is the only paint which is elastic enough and tough enough, in spite of climatic changes, to wear smoothly and evenly right down to the surface, leaving it free and uniform, all ready for the painter to begin his work when repainting is finally necessary.

A paint adulterated with barytes, yellow ochre, zinc and other substitutes for Pure White Lead, is inevitably stiff and brittle; and changes in temperature make it blister, crack and peel. Long before such paint has worn away, repainting becomes a necessity, on account of the many places left exposed. Yet, before repainting can be done, the blotchy, uneven surface must be scraped or burned till the smooth surface of the wood itself is reached. This requires much of the painter's valuable time, and is attended with no little risk from fire.

Avoid this expensive process and the danger which it always involves, by insisting on Pure White Lead in the first place. Don't leave any loophole; specify the brand: RED SEAL

Pure White Lead (Official name of the purest and most homogeneous of actual houses, offering valuable suggestions for a color scheme in painting your house. A test for paint purity is also given.) NATIONAL LEAD CO. 27 Broad Street Boston, Mass.

HARRISON.

In Memoriam. Zebulon J. Abbott was born in Harrison, August, 1829, and died May 26th, 1906, in his 77th year. He resided in Waterford for a number of years but for the last 10 years his home was in his native town. In his early life he engaged in the milling business, but later devoted himself to farming, until increasing years led him to give up the arduous labor and make his home in Harrison.

He was a man of honest integrity, exemplifying Christian principles in all his dealings. He was highly respected in the community and heartily liked by all, and had many true friends. There remain to mourn his loss a wife, a son, a daughter, two brothers and three sisters. Funeral services were conducted at his late home by Rev. Mabel C. Andrews, pastor of the Free Baptist church. The house was filled to overflowing with old friends and neighbors. The floral tributes were lovely and a quartette beautifully rendered "Gates Ajar," and "Nearer My God to Thee," the latter having been a favorite hymn with the deceased.

Soldier Questions.

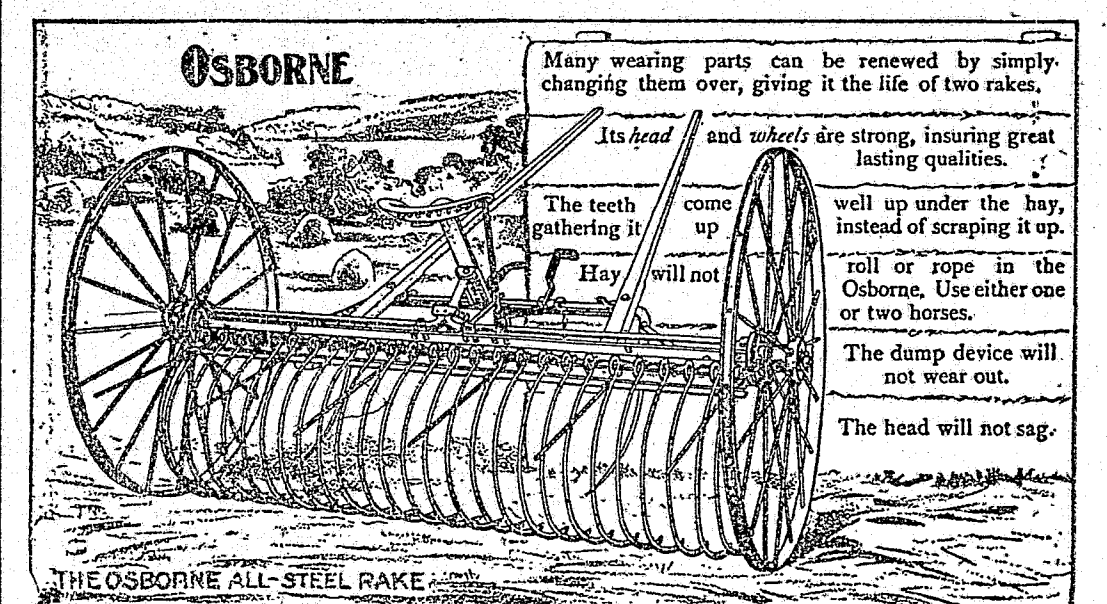

The Old Soldier has ceased to be a rarity. They are now searching for the youngest. Who was the youngest soldier who went to the civil war from old Oxford county? How many soldiers enlisted in the civil war from Oxford county? How many of these soldiers are now living?

May Was a Wet Month. The rainfall for the month of May amounted to 7.10 inches, which is the greatest rainfall in the course of 28 years.

The average precipitation in May for that time has been 3.15 inches and this year it was more than double that figure.

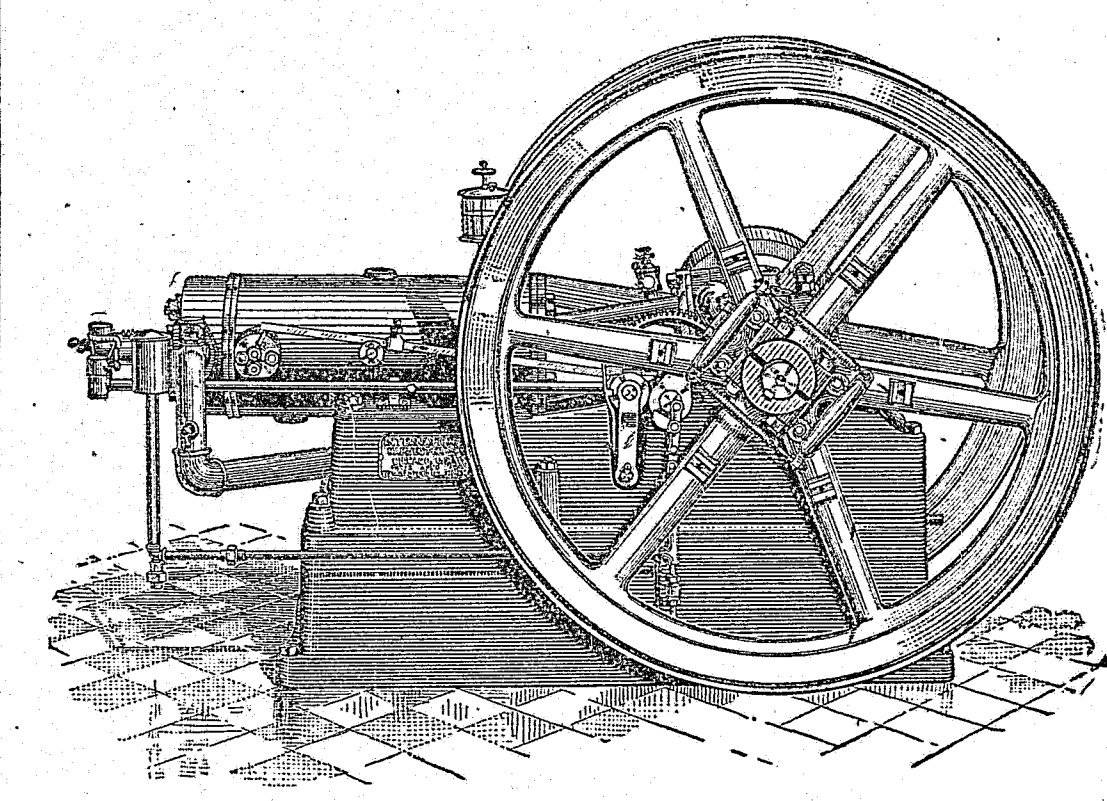

In one storm the aggregate amount of water was 4.45 inches. The May that nearest approached last month in amount of rain was that of 1892 when the record was 6.14 inches; with the May of 1901 a close second, when the record was 6.12 inches.

BROWNFIELD.

A Chapter of Misfortunes.
The little son born Sunday, June 3, to Mr. and Mrs. Byron Braden died Tuesday night. On Monday afternoon Lawson Marcus, the oldest child, was very severely bitten about the face by a dog with which he was playing. Friday afternoon the barn caught fire from a chimney which was burning out and was burned to the ground. The wind fortunately blew the flames away from the house. Mr. Braden and his wife who still remains very ill have the sympathy of every one in the community.

WEST SUMNER.

Cloud Burst.

There was a very heavy shower here last Saturday between 4 and 5 o'clock P. M. There was a high wind and some hail. The thunder was heavy and the rain fell in torrents. It is thought a cloud burst over the pinnacle at the top of Ryserson hill as the water came down in rivers, washing out the road the length of the hill, leaving it in a terrible condition. Some of the many people who have been to see it say they never saw anything like it. Work repairing it commenced Monday morning. At this writing a gang of men with six horses are at work. Quite a number of rocks have been blasted. A tree quite near the York brothers' barn was struck by lightning.

H. T. Heath has made some repairs on his barn.

J. A. Tuell, who has been very sick, is hoped to be a little better.

At the Paris Democratic caucus held last week delegates were elected to the various conventions as follows: State, Benoit L. Swift, A. Elroy Dean, E. J. Record; district, Herbert G. Fletcher, Albert M. Ryerson, E. J. Record; county, A. E. Shurtleff, W. D. Bryant, L. E. Monk.

Children's day was observed at the Universalist church, Sunday. The floral decorations were very pretty. Music was furnished by the church choir and Mrs. Kilborn of Bethel, who sang a solo and duet with Miss Tolman both of which were greatly appreciated. The ceremony was appropriate for the day and three children were christened.

The death of Robert L. Swift occurred at his home on Elm Hill, Tuesday afternoon. Mr. Swift had a severe illness of pneumonia about two months ago from which he never fully recovered. His illness had so affected his lungs and heart that death came suddenly at last and was a surprise to most of his friends who supposed he was improving. Mr. Swift was 49 years old and leaves a widow, who was before her marriage Annie L. Libby, but no children. The funeral was held Thursday afternoon, Rev. J. H. Little officiating.

WEST BETHEL.

L. E. Allen is making repairs on his shed and stable.

A. J. Haskell has his windmill put up and all things connected and it works nicely in pumping water.

L. E. Allen and wife are receiving a visit from their nephews, Byron and Sam Allen, from Abington, Mass.

H. W. Dennison and family of South Paris visited his parents, H. P. Dennison and wife, in this village last Sunday.

The store formerly occupied by L. Ordway is soon to be moved across the road on the place recently purchased by F. C. Wiggett, to be used for a hen house.

The missing link at the home of J. E. Pike has been replaced by a new one and housekeeping again established, and Mr. Pike now has a smiling face and his friends wish him and wife a long and happy life.

My Hair is Extra Long

Feed your hair; nourish it; give it something to live on. Then it will stop falling, and will grow long and heavy. Ayer's Hair Vigor is the only hair-food you can buy. For 60 years it has been doing just what we claim it will do. It will not disappoint you.

"My hair used to be very short. But after using Ayer's Hair Vigor a short time I began to grow, and now it is fourteen inches long. This seems a splendid result to me after being almost without any hair."—Mrs. A. H. Pike, Colorado Springs, Colo.

BUCKFIELD.

Destroy the Caterpillars.

The earth and trees are beautifully clothed in green but what a distasteful and slovenly sight to see along the way many trees loaded down with caterpillars.

Why don't the road commissioners destroy the caterpillars beside the highways? It would seem to be as much their business to remove these pests and hindrances to the public good as any other from the lands under their charge.

Guy Gardner of Dixfield was in town with his auto, Tuesday.

Mrs. John Ellingwood, Virgil Cole and Mrs. Edwin Maxim are reported ill.

Ex-Gov. Long was in town last week. He plans to occupy his summer home in August.

Elmer Austin's horse became greatly frightened at an auto, Tuesday, and smashed a carriage somewhat.

Howard P. Shaw has graduated from the Boston School of Technology and returned home and gone into the store.

The fishermen have returned home. What success attended them we are unadvised except that a bit of salmon wandered to my plate.

A vaudeville show ran through last week at Nesimot hall. A watch contest caused quite an interest, the same being won by Winnie Jordan of West Buckfield.

Wife and I were taken out to ride Sunday by a son, the first ride this season out into the country. It may be my last. When having to be helped in and out of the carriage, it is a reminder of what must happen.

June 11th, Sanford Lucas passed away at 40 years of age after a sickness of one week of pneumonia. He was an honest, hard working man, a kind husband and father, and a conscientious Christian. Sadder of all, a wife and four children are deprived of his help and counsel.

One of Buckfield's nice young men has bought a nice carriage and arrayed in his Sunday suit essayed to ride, taking his chum along. It so happened that he had been feeding old bob on green grass and before much ground was traversed something happened, as something sometimes will. After wiping up the best they could and returning home in disgust, two other young men sought a ride. Nothing said, but alas, these shared the same fate.

NORTH PARIS.

Monday night gave us a frost.

Mrs. May Page of Lewiston, visited here over Sunday.

Mrs. America Andrews and Beatrice have gone to Brunswick.

Mr. and Mrs. Freeman Ellingwood visited at Paris Hill last week.

Several from this place, attended the funeral of Charles Stevens. Mr. Stevens lived in this place for several years.

Rev. T. Whiteside preached the memorial sermon at the M. E. church last Sunday. Three veterans were present.

Mrs. Jane Robbins is better. Her daughter, Mrs. Lorana Andrews of Livermore Falls came to help care for her.

WEST FRYEBURG.

Has Resumed Business. The Stirling Literary club met on Tuesday, June 5th, at the home of Mrs. H. D. E. Hutchins, after an interval of several weeks. The election of officers resulted in the choice of Mrs. Olive Hutchins as president. Mrs. Emma D. Walker, vice president, and Mrs. Kate Meserve as secretary and treasurer. The secretary's report usual on occasions of annual meeting was interesting and encouraging for the future of the club. Plans for the interest of the club during the summer, and sundry considerations in the line of domestic science followed and at the usual hour adjournment was taken to meet June 19th at the home of the librarian, Mrs. M. A. Hill.

There is a report that E. F. McIntire has sold his mill to a Portland party.

Telephone posts which do not add to the attractiveness of the landscape have been set along our street.

The remains of Mrs. Lois Ande Weeks, well known here, were brought to her old home town, Conway, for interment in the Green Hill cemetery, on Memorial day.

Orson Heath lately visited relatives of his late wife in Massachusetts. Commander Heath was unable to attend the Memorial exercises and the graves of the dead soldiers of the Green Hill section were marked by comrades David Hill and Charles Binford.

Mrs. B. Walker McKen is a guest at her son's, Harold McKen's, for a short time.

STONEHAM.

Keniston-Files.

Hazel Keniston and Clarence Files were married June 8th by Rev. G. P. Fuller. They had their reception last Saturday night at the G. A. R. hall.

About 70 guests were present. The bride received many beautiful and useful gifts. A treat of ice cream and cake was served, also cigars. We wish them happiness in their new life.

Oren Bartlett of Portsmouth, N. H., is visiting relatives here.

Leon Allen from Keene, N. H., is visiting relatives and friends here.

Harry A. McKen is at work for C. B. Cummings and Sons of Norway.

Fred Harmon and wife of West Lovell were at M. E. Grover's, Saturday.

George Brown and wife went to Norway, Monday, to do some shopping.

Frank Grover, wife and children of Albany were at Simon Grover's, last Sunday.

Fred McKen has returned from the Lakes. He was away a week on a fishing trip.

David McAllister and wife went to East Waterford last week to stay a few days with Mrs. Seavey, who is very sick.

Louie Patch visited her brother, F. H. McAllister, last week. She went to Sweden, Sunday, and later will go to Bridgton, where she makes it her home.

Mr. Gurney has been having lots of company at his camp by the Lakes. Some of them were: Percy E. Parker of Boston, G. A. Cole, G. R. Stephenson, C. D. Haines of Norway, and A. L. Bangs of Lewiston with his automobile.

One day last week as Frank McAllister was going to the village, his horse got frightened at a sack of sawdust by the roadside. The horse turned around very quickly and broke one shaft. No other damage was done. People ought to be more careful about leaving things by the road to frighten horses.

OTISFIELD GORE.

Ella Meserve and Evelyn Linnell recently went to Lewiston. Charles H. Brett went to Lewiston recently and purchased a new horse. Charles B. Grover sold a horse to his brother, Artemus Grover, of Stoneham one day last week.

Enjoying June.

"Do you enjoy good health?" Asked a sympathetic friend of a crabbed old doctor.

"Yes, who don't?"
But however it may be with good health, there can be no doubt that a great many people don't half enjoy good weather. A few persons whose calling lies in that direction, poets, artists, writers of seasonable topics for the press and such like, give their minds up to it in a natural way, and some even open up all their senses to the enjoyment of Nature's triumphs.

But the average out-of-doors worker, the farmers' wives and daughters, the mass of village folk, and other persons who live near enough to the God-made country to enjoy it if they could and would, miss many of the delights which might be theirs. The weather is good when the housewife can dry her Monday's washing, or the farmer scry her hay or plow out his corn. But weather that is good simply to live in and be happy is not much thought of, and yet these perfect June days have no higher or more useful purpose than to make us contented, charmed with the beauty of the world, happy in the delights ministered unto us by our finest senses, and grateful to God for it all.

The fresh verdure of the earth, the clean, new foliage of the trees, the flower-blossoms and fragrance, the soft air and lovely sky, and all that makes the world seem a new Paradise, are ours to enjoy.

How shall we do it? In the first place by thinking more about it. There is only one June in a year, and the graceless calendar makers have clipped one day off from that; a robbery which one can only condone by reflecting that they cut two of them off from February. Not a day of June should pass without thinking how lovely it is, rain or shine, cloudy or clear, hot or heavenly mild, early or late, that isn't a gem.

What sunsets are hers! The sun never rises in a city, it simply grows light. June in the city when people begin to fret about the hot weather, move into the back part of the house, and ask the neighbors where they are going to spend the summer.

It is only in the country that June is herself and at home. What mornings for workers who have vision as well as sight, ears for something besides the dinner-bell, and a nose that scents a sweet-briar bush clear across the meadow.

The old miracle of a "New created world," miraculous no longer because it has been occurring for thousands of years, and we have named the process "Law," by which the bleak, bare earth is clothed upon with beauty, is never felt so forcibly as now.

It is a time to seek out the old familiar wood-paths, to renew acquaintance with the brooks. All the summer delights, from lounging under a whispering tree to joining in the active sports of the season, ought now to be at their best. Holidays should be made on the slightest pretext, leave the dishes unwashed until after dark, and go out and see the sunset. Take a morning stroll among the roses or flower beds, there is no "nerve" equal to it. Go fishing, go and see your girl, take a walk with your own or some other girl's brother. The June moon shouldn't be permitted to waste her beams. To short let your eyes, ears, nostrils, tongue and every source of sensibility know that June is here, and that she is worthy to be enjoyed.

RUMFORD FALLS.

A Camp of Sons of Veterans is to be formed at Rumford Falls.

Hon John D. Bisbee and Naham Moore entertained the members of the old Buckfield Club at Oxford Bear camp on Mooseheneagantic lake from Saturday until Thursday.

The Sturgis deputies made a seizure of 400 gallons of whiskey Saturday evening. The liquor was found in a freight car in the yard of the Oxford Paper Co. The tags had all been torn from the packages.

Of the fifteen children of varying ages brought here last week, from the Little Wanderer's Home in Boston, all but two had been placed in homes on Thursday. The children were accompanied by three matrons and were visited at the Baptist vestry during the week.

Samuel Beausoliel tried to escape to his old home in Canada with his household goods and other belongings. His creditors got wind of the weather. His goods that were en route to Bryant's Pond returned, and Mr. Beausoliel will have to settle before he leaves.

Rev. Mr. Nannan of Denmark preached at the Episcopal church on Thursday evening, the sermon being in the Danish language. The service came as a great treat to the Danish population about Rumford for it is seldom they hear a sermon in the native tongue.

Mrs. Alakita Philbrook and Arthur Ladd got into trouble over a coat that Ladd claimed and Mrs. Philbrook said belonged to another man, and it was claimed that Ladd struck her several times. They had a hearing before Judge Johnson, who found in the respondent guilty and fined him $10.00 and costs which he paid and was discharged.

On Sunday June 3, at high noon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Hiram West in Virginia, occurred the marriage of their son, Asa F. West of Upton, to Mrs. Aida Sarah Bryant of Exeter, N. H., Rev. G. B. Hannaford officiating. The room was beautifully arranged with flowers and Little Misses Abbott and Bryant were maids of honor for the occasion. Mr. and Mrs. West will reside in Virginia.

Forests and Stream Flow.

In considering the relation of forests to stream flow James W. Tourney expresses the opinion that, although the forest may have, on the whole, but little appreciable effect in increasing the rainfall and the annual run-off, its economic importance in regulating the flow of streams is beyond computation. The great indirect value of the forest is the effect which it has in preventing the wind and water erosion, thus allowing the soil on hills and mountains to remain in place and in the other way providing an adequate absorbing medium at the sources of the water courses of the country. It is the amount of water that passes into the soil, not the amount of rainfall, that makes a region garden or desert.

A MIND OF HER OWN

was August, 1781. Washington was hurrying southward to face Lord Cornwallis at Yorktown, and the French fleet was closing in to cut off the escape of the British by sea. It was a well laid plan between the Americans and the French. As Washington left the Hudson with his army several crafts left New England ports laden with the munitions and supplies which would be needed later on, and among them was Captain Elisha Hopewell's brig Mary Ann of Salem. It will forever stand to the credit of that town that the contributions of food, blankets, shoes and hospital supplies sent in so free handed would have loaded the brig to the hatches had they been taken aboard. Room had to be reserved for the field-pieces and muskets which were to be taken on at Boston. While hundreds of willing hands were helping to stow cargo Captain Elisha went home to have a talk with his wife Nancy. She had made three trips with him to Havana and each time had undergone adventures and proved her nerve. This was a military charter instead of a trading voyage, however, and, as the run was to be coastwise and the British held New York, Nancy must be left behind. The captain had no doubt of this in his own mind, but still he would let her down easy. He stopped at the gate and looked around in a careless way, and he sauntered around the wood pile as if mentally calculating how long the fuel would last, and by and by he walked slowly into the kitchen. Nancy was peeling potatoes for supper. She looked up at the clock and then at her husband, and as he sat down with a grunt and remarked that it looked a little bit like a thunderstorm she paled away at a potato and said:

"Elisha Hopewell, something's the matter with you! Don't deny it, fur you can't fib to me!"

"I'm just a little bit nervous over what's ahead," he explained as he glanced at her out of the tail of his eye. "I shall do my best, of course, to get through to the Chesapeake, but the British will be on watch all along from Boston to the Cape. I'm powerful glad, Nancy, that I shan't have you on board to fret about."

"Who said I wouldn't be aboard when the Mary Ann sailed?" she asked.

"Why, nobody; but of course you won't be. I'm chartered by the government, you know."

"That will do, Elisha. I know all about the charter, and it don't worry me a speck. When the brig goes, I go. I've had my mind made up fur two hull days."

"Then, by Josh, the government will spy you!" he exclaimed.

"It may if it can, Elisha, but it's no use for you to spout up and wilt your collar over it. There's forty good reasons why I should go along and not one reason why I should stay home. By the time you've fed the pig, washed your face and combed your hair I'll have supper ready."

Nancy Hopewell was not a scold nor a woman of temper. She simply had a mind of her own—an unusually strong one. She thought things over before coming to conclusions, and when her mind was fully made up it was no use for Elisha to argue and protest. He sulked around on this occasion till supper was ready, and he might have sulked all through the meal had she not said:

"Elisha, don't be a baby. If you are captured I might as well be, and if you pull through I'll be with you. You know I can steer a trick, pull a rope and sight a sail as fur as the next one."

"I'm ag'in it," he replied; "but, bein' as you are sot about it, I s'pose you'll have to go."

That settled it. Nancy was aboard when the brig sailed down to Boston, and she was aboard when the arms were taken on and the voyage resumed. The British had heard of Washington's change of base, of course, and they would be sure that supplies would be sent from New England ports. As a matter of fact, every vessel which could be spared from their fleet in northern waters was sent to patrol the coast above and below New York, and it is a matter of record that they gathered up a goodly number of the supply ships. When the Mary Ann had cleared Boston light the crew looked for her to head straight to sea for a hundred miles. That had been Captain Elisha's first idea, but as he broached it to his wife she said:

"Elisha, it's a good thing in war never to do what the enemy expects you to. If I was a Britisher I'd figger that you would run fur out to sea to get a good offing before you headed your course, and so I'd keep most of my patrol boats from fifty to seventy-five miles off shore."

"By Josh, but there's something in that!" exclaimed the captain.

"If you keep near the coast," continued the wife, "you've got the chance of shoal water over a big craft; and there's more show fur squalls and fogs and dodgin', and if you find you can't git away from pursuit you can pile the Mary Ann up on the beach somewhere and keep the cargo out of the hands of the British."

"By Josh! By Josh!" whisperingly repeated Elisha as he gazed at her in admiration. "We'd all gone ahead and figgered on a long run to the east; and it ain't no plan at all compared to yours."

"Thank you, Elisha," she quietly replied as she turned to hunt for a button to sew on his vest.

After clearing Cape Cod the Mary Ann ran to the south and hugged the shore, and while off Chatham she got sight of the topsails of a craft to the east which could only have been a British man-of-war beating back and forth in the track. When the point was rounded she laid her course for Vineyard sound. She was well up with Gay head when she sighted a small schooner which was beating into the sound, and as the two craft passed each other within biscuit toss the schooner's captain hailed:

"If you are bound south you'd better look out fur British cruisers. There's at least three of 'em to the east of Block Island, and they captured a Boston schooner yesterday."

The course of the Mary Ann was altered to the northwest, and she stretched across until Point Judith was sighted. Then she hugged the coast for thirty miles and laid a true course for Montauk. She was now in the month of Long Island sound, and it was the danger spot of the voyage. The run across would have been made at night, but early in the evening the wind died out, and the brig was compelled to anchor to prevent being carried away with the tide. A mist rose off the water to shut in the vision of the men on her decks, and, though the off watch turned in, Captain Hopewell's anxiety would not permit of sleep. At midnight he descended to the cabin to find his wife still awake. He was glad of it, as he wanted some one to talk to. "Look here, Nancy," he began; "I don't like this; by Josh, if I do! We won't get no breeze before sunrise, and d'ye know what we'll see the very first thing when the mist is blown away?"

"A Britisher about two miles off, I guess," she replied.

"That's it—that's jest what we'll see, and I want to know what we're goin' to do about it."

"Nuthin', tall, Elisha. We can't make the wind blow."

"But he'll capture us!"

"Mebbe he will and mebbe he won't. I've thought I had a hen right by the tail, when she'd dodge to right or left and git away. It won't do no good to stew and fret. It's time to take medicine when you know something ails ye. I'd turn in and git some sleep if I was you. You'll be called before day-break."

The captain followed her advice, and for the next four hours the brig was so quiet that a boat drifting past would have heard no sound. Then it was Nancy herself who called the sleeper.

"I'll be daylight in half an hour," she whispered, "and I want to tell ye something. I've been on deck fur the last half hour, and I'm sure there's a craft of some sort at anchor below us."

"It'll be a man-of-war, Nancy, a man-of-war!" he groaned.

"Most likely, but we needn't faint away on that account."

On reaching the deck the captain felt of the atmosphere, so to say. To a sailor or there were indications that a breeze off the land might soon be expected. It would be weak and puffy and not strengthen until sunrise, but it was his plan to take advantage of those puffs as far as he could. The paws of the windlass were muffled, and as the cable came slowly in there was little or no sound of weight on the shore. The tide was running up the sound, and tide and breeze sent the Mary Ann along for half an hour. Then of a sudden the breeze freshened, the mist began to disappear, and down in the south and about three miles away the crew of the brig caught sight of a British frigate.

"By Josh, but didn't I tell ye so?" exclaimed Captain Hopewell as his eyes lighted on the craft.

"Yes, Elisha, you did," replied Nancy, "but I don't see anything to holler about."

"And there goes a gun! And there goes a flag!" shouted the captain as he waved his telescope around.

"Waal, that don't hurt us any. Look here, Nancy, don't git excited and fall downstairs. The Britisher lays with his head to the south. He's got to up anchor, and come about before he can chase us, and we'll then have a lead of four miles."

It took the big craft a long time to get up her anchor and come about, and she took up the pursuit in a hopeless way. The Mary Ann increased her lead every minute, and her crew were full of rejoicing until they had rounded the point. Then they saw fair before them, coming up the coast, one of the ten gun briggs which the British were making use of for shoal water patrolling. They were swift sailers, those briggs, but in this case there was no need of pursuit. The Mary Ann had sailed right into the trap.

"By Josh, Nancy, but we're taken!" exclaimed Captain Hopewell as he caught sight of the stranger.

"Waal, don't have a fit over it," she replied.

"But the Mary Ann is lost, and we are prisoners!"

"We'll see about that. There goes a gun fur us to heave to. Fetch her into the wind, Elisha, and don't do no groanin' and lamentin'. No dog is ever dead till his tail has stopped waggin'. I'm goin' to believe that somethin' will turn up before we are carried into New York."

A quarter of an hour later an officer of the brig was on board. Having made a capture under the nose of a big frigate, as it were, he was in good humor.

The captured brig was taken into New York, and as a beginning the captor made a very foolish move, even though he may have been short of men. He ordered the sails of the Mary Ann to be furled and then got out a line and took her in tow. Even Captain Hopewell was allowed to remain aboard, and the three Englishmen left behind were to take turns at the wheel and keep an eye on the prisoners. It was probably argued that without a firearm aboard, in broad daylight and within rifle shot of her captor, the Yankee crew would be as humble as rabbits. So they were for a time, and so they might have continued but for the captain's wife. She took an hour to think things over, and then she said to the captain, who sat in the cabin with her with his head in his hands:

"Elisha, are you a worm of a man?"

"What odds does it make whether I'm one or t'other?" he replied as he straightened up.

"It may make a good deal. How's the wind?"

"Nor-nor'west and fresh'nin' all the time."

"And we are keepin' close in?"

WEST PARIS.

Mrs. Anna C. Young has returned home.

Mrs. E. H. Brown of Rumford Falls spent several days here last week.

Linette Marshall has gone to the Central Maine General hospital for appendicitis.

Miriam Lane of Berlin has been visiting her relatives here for the past week or so.

Mary Taylor has been here for the past week with her cousin, Clarence G. Morton and wife.

Fred Smith has gone to Norway to work for his grandfather, L. R. Willis, and S. T. White is without a clerk.

Menck Bros. Comedians are encamped here for a week and are having shows each night at Dunham's hall.

Miss Pierce of New York is visiting her friend, Mrs. Locke. Barry Locke has been home from Orono for a vacation.

Rev. A. K. Baldwin of South Paris, preached an excellent memorial sermon for the I. O. O. F. and Rebekah lodges last Sunday afternoon.

Elmer P. Stetson and family from Gilbertville have moved into the upstairs rent in L. F. Willis' house. Mrs. Stetson is Mr. Willis' eldest daughter.

A reception and pound party will be given to Rev. and Mrs. White and family, Monday evening June 18 at the parsonage. Refreshments will be served.

Theodore, the five year old son of Vernal Bates of New Haven, Conn., arrived here with his father the last of the week, and will remain for a couple of months with his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Bates.

Mrs. F. S. Farnham will have a clearance sale of summer goods at her millinery and fancy goods store, for one week commencing Monday, June 18. The goods are marked at greatly reduced prices, many at half price.

The ladies' aid of the Methodist church met this week Tuesday afternoon with Mrs. E. D. Stilwell. Plans for working and earning money for the benefit of the society were discussed. It was decided that they would give a food sale consisting of white and brown bread, cakes and pastry, at two o'clock each Saturday afternoon. It will be held in Mrs. Davis Curtis' front room, next Saturday, June 16.

Mrs. L. F. Willis is having considerable company of late. Her mother, Mrs. Usher, and niece, Flora Brackett from Westbrook, also her brother, William Usher from San Francisco have been with her for a week or more. Mr. Usher's home is within a few blocks of the burned district of Frisco's earthquake disaster. Although his home was badly shaken it was saved from destruction. In addition to the above visitors, Mr. Willis and two sons, John and L. F. Jr. and a young lady friend were here over Sunday.

The regular meeting of the W. C. T. U. met with Mrs. O. K. Yates last week Thursday. The new yearly programs were distributed which have a full printed cover picture of Mrs. L. M. N. Stevens. The rest of the program is done on a hektograph. Each meeting is to have a roll call responded to by temperance current events. The first month, June, was flower mission day with a paper by Della Lane, followed by a violin solo by Jennie M. Brown, and a story of dumb animals entitled "The Strike at Shanes" read by members. Two men members joined the union.
